

Introduction to Dangerous Goods Transport

Who should attend

This course is aimed at managers and supervisors new to the domestic or international consignment of dangerous goods. This course is vital for those new to dangerous goods who may go on to do DGSA or road and sea or air courses.

Key benefits

This course enables candidates to be able to identify the regulations applicable to their operation and have a broad appreciation of the procedures and measures required for the safe despatch, loading and carriage of goods.

Course content

- Regulatory framework
- UN recommendations
- Road, rail, sea and air regulations
- General principles of classification and identification
  - hazard classes
  - UN numbers
  - product containment
  - packages and gas cylinders
  - IBCs and large packages
  - portable tanks and tankers
  - marking and labelling
  - despatch and documentation procedures
  - vehicle, driver and transport equipment
  - UK and European tunnels
  - emergencies
  - security

Course duration

1 day

Non-residential course

Venue	Dates
Tunbridge Wells	23 January	13 May	11 December
Milton Keynes	27 March	16 July	18 September

This course can also be delivered in-company.

Non-residential price

£305 + VAT

This price includes tuition, course notes, certification, lunch and refreshments.

“As a relative newcomer to the transportation of dangerous goods, I found this course gave me a valuable insight. It enabled me to carry out my job more competently. I would certainly advise anyone new to transport and to the carriage of dangerous goods to take this course, it provides all the basic knowledge needed to carry out a safe and effective role in the world of transportation.”

John Horne, Transport Assistant, Scott Bader Co Ltd

